

Privacy Policy for Refuge Bowling Green App

The Refuge Bowling Green App collects data which helps the app's developers know how the app is used. This means that we collect data on: if you are a new user, how long you use the app for, which country you are in when you use the app, when and why the app crashes, and which part of the app gets the most views. That being said, the app DOES NOT specify which user the information is coming from. All user data is combined and analyzed together.

If you are a user that is not a Refuge BG staff member, you will not have an account in the app. This means that you CAN NOT upload data for other users, and that the aforementioned data is the ONLY data that is collected from you.

This data is only shared with the developers of the app and Refuge BG staff. The reason this data is shared with these people is so that we can make informed decisions on making the app better. This includes knowing which parts of the app are not working or the reasons why the app is crashing.

If you are a user that is a Refuge BG staff member, you will have an account in the app. This means that you CAN upload data for other users, and that the aforementioned data is SOME of the data that is collected from you. The other data that is collected from you is: your device token id, any text messages you post, any links you post, and any photos you post.

This data is only shared with the developers of the app and Refuge BG staff. The reason this data is shared with these people is so that staff and developers can log in to their accounts without typing their log in information. The text messages, links, and photos are shown to all users of the app. The developers and staff can view the backend version of this data and can therefore manipulate that data, if needed.

If any users have any questions or concerns about our privacy policy or our app in general, email the developer team at elisestes@gmail.com.
